SPRING.

Up from the glowing South—with azure eyes,
All sleepy with the lilt of brilliant days,
Or ruby-tinted bird, gleam-painted butterfly,
Gold plover shore and lily-crested river,
Where gill insects' amongst lush emerald quiver,
And the perfume of spiced lilies breathe,
And silver waves the waves round rocks of coral wreath.

All gathered in the meshes of a rainbow net,
The gorgeous hues with dinner pearls beset,
She flings before her. Like to red-tuned note,
Such as from the shepherd's pipe or some lone

So sounds the soft wind-whisper of her voice—
"O' Udder! O' Udder! dear whistler rejoice!
The Easter of the year is come—wake up to life!"

The challenge rings far to the snow-bound North;
The ice-king trembles—"Up, ye warriors—
forth!"

An army comes." Nay, but a maiden fair
Suites at the Winter-King in his despair,
And he death-fraught seepier throwing down,
Kisses her outstretched hand and yields his crown,
And through the mountain gorges sounds her voice,
"Comin'! O' death-chained waters—live! rejoice!"

The Easter of the year is come—wake up and live!"

A liquid murmur, like the west wind stroke
Of Eolus on the silver lute—stroke
The silence, then a cadence wild and sharp;
Like to maul, lull chords on untuned harp;
And with a passionate and thundering roar,
From thousand rocks the swelling waters pour—
Till, tuned to melody, they sweep along,
And in the swelling rules lift up their Easter song.

Awake, ye buds and blossoms! Perfume sweet
Steals through the air, her dainty steps to greet,
Bursts forth the dappled bloom from orchards gay,
Earth's primrose shades shine out. The clustering May
Frets o'er the green-grown hedge with sudden voice—
"Fire Easter-garb after the long death-night."

Lo! at her voice fair Nature bursts the tomb,
And rises glorious in fresh beauty's bloom,
Type of a fairer spring-time yet to be,
When mortal shall wake up to immortality,
"O, ah, ye living ones, lift up your voice—
Comin'! O' Udder! dear whistler rejoice!
The Easter of the year is come—wake up to life."

Once a Week.

SOLDIERS OF 1812 IN WOODFORD.

These old soldiers who served their country in the war, generally called the war of 1812, and who have been so sadly neglected in their old age by the Government, which has been liberal to the soldiers of other wars in the way of pensions, bounties, offices, &c., are fast passing away, and in a few more years there will be none left to tell the story of their trials and sufferings. 'Twas but a few days ago that Enoch Ducker, one of the oldest, if not the oldest citizen of Versailles, died, leaving behind him in this county not more than five or six old patriots who served with him.

Among these are William Floyd, who was born in Fayette county, Kentucky, in January 1793, but has been a resident of this county since 1831. He was at and participated in the battle of the Thames under Gen. Harrison.

William Stevenson, now 82 years of age, was born in this county, where he has ever since lived. He served as a soldier under Gen. Hopkins. His present appearance of health, his active step for one of his great age gives assurance that his life has been temperate one, and that his days have been passed in peace and tranquility. Although he has lived beyond his three score and ten, yet we hope that he may live and enjoy in his quiet and unobtrusive way many more years.

Hosea Sutherland was born in South Carolina on the first day of February 1795, and is consequently 76 years of age. He has lived in this State 61 years, and now resides on Green's Creek, in this county. He was enrolled as a soldier under Col. Francisco in Franklin county, Kentucky.

Hugh Paul, born in Virginia in 1788. He entered the service of his country in this county and served under Capt. Singleton. He resides on Clear Creek, near the village of Troy.

Last, but by no means the least, is our rare old friend John Johnston, or as he is familiarly called, "uncle" John Johnston. He is now 91 years old, hale, hearty and active, with an elasticity of step and a vivacity and sprightliness of mind and manner that would be admired in a youth of twenty. He performs his daily labor—working on his farm—with the same industry, energy, and cheerfulness that he did 75 years ago. He has always been the associate of the young and is ever welcomed to their society. Most men of his age are too old for "uncle Johnnie." Frolic, fun, and practical jokes he still loves, and will walk miles to gratify his passion for them. A sincere friend, a kind neighbor is our old friend, and he is beloved by all who are fortunate enough to know him. He was born in Maryland in 1789 of Dutch parents, and entered the service of his country in Fayette county, this State, and now lives near Maysville. May he live many more years in health, and may he pass the remainder of his life in peace and contentment. We are sure the wish of all who know uncle Johnnie Johnston.

A FAMILY WITHOUT THE NEWSPAPER.

Nothing presents a sadder commentary upon the present unhealthy condition of our once loved and prosperous country than the large number of families both in the city and country, but more especially in the latter, that subscribe to no paper of any kind. Hundreds and thousands of families are thus growing up in utter ignorance of what is daily transpiring in the world around them—ignorant of the mighty events of to-day.

But who can tell the vast amount of injury that is being inflicted upon the rising generation—those who are to take our places in the busy world at no distant day—growing up without any knowledge of the present, the past, or any study of the future; and this ignorance, too, being inbred into them by the sanction of those who should, and doubtless do, know better, did they only think of the injuries effects of their insane course. Let the head of every family think of this, and place in the hands of those for whom he is responsible the means of acquiring a thorough knowledge of the moving panorama in which we enact our parts.

A certain minister was not over-fastidious about his wardrobe. One day, meeting his brother, who was also a divine, he was censured for being so careless about his dress, and especially reprimanded him for wearing striped pants, it being altogether indecent. Whereupon the humorous preacher retorted by saying, "Brother C—, my religion does not lie in my breeches."

"Some girls never will learn to restrain the natural impulses of their nature. A minister was baptizing a girl at Ripon, Wisconsin, and when he had submerged her, and came out of the water, he asked her how she felt in her mind. Her answer was, "All hunky, only a little wet."

A rich but ignorant lady of Boston, who was ambitious that her conversation should be up to the transcendental style, in speaking of a friend, said: "He is a paradigm of politeness!" "Excuse me," said a lady sitting next to her; "but do you not mean a parallelogram?" "Of course I meant a parallelogram," replied the ambitious lady; "how could I have made such a mistake?"

"John," said a poverty-stricken man to his son, "I have made my will to-day." "Ah," said John, "you were very liberal to me, no doubt." "Yes, John, I came down handsome. I've willed you the whole State of Virginia to make a living in with the privilege of going elsewhere if you can do better."

A Quaker's advice to his son on his wedding day: "When thou went a courting, I told thee to keep thy eyes wide open; now that thou art married, I tell thee to keep them half shut."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla, FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. In all cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system is generally saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Visible forms of Scrofulous disease, and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this poison, or taint of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its heinous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, where it may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, in length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: E. A. M. Anthony's Pile, Rashes, or eruptions, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or Scrofulous diseases. Also, the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various nervous affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for eradicating these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaints of Scrofulous Whites, Eruptions, Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when the complaint is Rheumatism or Whites, Eruptions in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Inflam. Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the ranking poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Affections or Fevers, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

ORCHARDS.

Learning that a great many fruit trees have been planted during the season, we offer a few suggestions as to their future management. We offer them as the result of observation rather than of individual experience, and as the teachings of common sense.

Young trees should be carefully mulched in June, to secure the tender roots against the damaging effects of heat and drought, and the soil kept light and free from weeds and grass. In giving form to the tree, care should be taken to have the lower limbs as near to the ground as they will grow. By this plan the bodies are protected against excessive heat, and the roots are kept moist by the shade and the mulching supplied by the falling leaves. It may be objected to this that the lower limbs will interfere with the proper cultivation of the orchard. Such interference is exactly what is needed, to keep the plow from lacerating the lateral roots, so commonly broken, at the time they are performing their most important function.

It is a fact in the physiology of fruit-bearing trees, that the roots which strike deepest into the ground supply the food that conducts to the growth of the stem and branches, whilst the lateral roots, feeding near the surface, supply the material for the perfection of the fruit, and hence the importance of not breaking or disturbing them. To insure their not being broken, the lower limbs should not be allowed to pass under the foot of the horse and plow. As soon as the trees are too large to be injured by hogs, the space between them should be planted alternately in corn and oats, and the hogs turned in as soon as the grain is in the dough stage. This system enriches and mellows the soil, and invites the extension of the surface roots in search of food for the growing and ripening fruit. A great additional advantage from this mode of treatment is, that the grain will be ready for feeding down at the time that the fruit, perforated by the borers, begins to drop off—all of which will be consumed by the hogs before the worm escapes from its nest. This is the most reliable protection against that destructive worm that we have known to be tried. Common sense sustains this theory, and a trial will demonstrate it to be the true one.—Clarksville Chronicle.

Effects of Deep Cultivation on Corn Crop.
At a farmers' convention at Edwardsville, Illinois, John C. Burrows gave the following illustrative statement, in the course of an address on "corn and its management":
"John L. Gill, of Columbus, Ohio, on a tract of bottom land, which for forty years previous had never been plowed to a depth exceeding six inches, and which had been cultivated annually in corn during the entire period, plowed eleven and three quarter acres to a depth of eight inches, and subdivided to a further depth of eight inches, and planted corn May 10. The adjoining portion of the tract was plowed to the usual depth of previous years, and planted with corn May 7. On the shallow-plowed land the corn came up and looked, for a few weeks, as well as on the deep-plowed land; but when the heat of July came, the corn on the shallow-plowed land came to a standstill; the leaves curled and drooped, and gave unmistakable evidence of suffering from drought, while that on the deep-plowed land was growing vigorously, and indicated no lack of moisture. The result was that Mr. Gill obtained 12½ bushels per acre, while the adjoining fields yielded less than 40 bushels per acre."—Agricultural Report.

Remedy for Hog Cholera.
Indisposition has prevented me from again writing relative to hog cholera, and in reply Mr. J. B.

His first inquiries, if guni abric are necessary in my specific dog cholera, may be answered in the negative, though I regard them as valuable adjuncts. As mentioned before, I regard cholera of potash the great remedy, in about five grain doses, given twice a day. Below you will find my formula:

Cholera of potash, 1½ ounces; turpentine, 4 ounces; powder guni abric, 1 ounce; water, 1 pint. Mix. Doses—one teaspoonful twice a day; as a preventative, one half the quantity. Give it in bran.

The turpentine is rendered soluble by rubbing up with guni abric, and then add the cholera of potash and water.

I believe chicken cholera to be nothing more than a diseased condition of the blood, and could be cured in the same way, by giving cholera of potash, though I have no practical knowledge in regard to it.

I would confine this remedy to no particular disease, but give it in all diseases, both of man, the fowl, and the beast, where the blood is diseased and greatly impoverished, as you find it in diphtheria, hog cholera, etc.

The World's Wonders.
This world of ours is filled with wonders. The microscope reveals them not less than the telescope, each at either extreme of creation. In the insect creation, particularly, there is so much to know that has never been dreamed of—wheels within wheels without computation of number. Let us take a rapid glance at the proofs of this statement. The polyphemus, it is said, like the fabled hydra, recovers new life from the knife which is lifted to destroy it. The spider-fly lays on eggs as big as itself. There are four thousand and forty-one muscles in the caterpillar. Locke discovered fourteen thousand mirrors in the eye of a drone; and, to effect the respiration of a carp, thirteen thousand three hundred arteries, vessels, veins, nerves, etc., are necessary. The body of a spider contains four little masses pierced with a multitude of imperceptible holes, each hole permitting the passage of a single thread; all the threads, to the amount of a thousand to each mass, join together when they come out, and make the single thread with which the spider spins its web; so that what we call a spider's thread consists of more than four thousand united. Leuwenhoek, by means of microscopes, observed spiders no bigger than the grain of sand, and which spun threads so fine that it took four thousand of them to equal in magnitude a single hair.

NAPOLEON'S FLOWER.—The violet is the emblematic flower of the Bonapartes, as the lily is of the Bourbons. When Eugene agreed to accept Napoleon's offer of marriage, she expressed it only by appearing one evening dressed in an exquisite violet toilet—violets in her hair, in her dress, even to a bunch in her hand. Louis Napoleon understood, and it was his only answer. Napoleon, while counsel selected this as his flower. It was through Josephine asking him to bring her a bouquet of them on her birthday—a desire he was only able to serve after very great difficulty. He cultivated them assiduously while a prisoner at St. Helena, and they were profusely plucked after the grave of Josephine. After his death, his coffin was covered with the humble flower he loved. It is even said that in the earlier days of Louis Napoleon he was silently made acquainted with whom his secret friends were by a cautious display of violets.

Over a hundred years ago, at a meeting of the Mathematical Association at Liverpool, a member said he could read a paragraph in a newspaper at ten yards' distance by the light of a burning candle. This being on all sides doubted, a wager was laid, when the member took a concave wooden dish and covered it with pieces of looking-glass, which he fastened to the dish with putty. Having thus made a reflector, he placed the candle in the center, and then taking his position ten yards from the light, he read aloud to the whole assembly and won the wager amid the greatest applause. Among those who witnessed this experiment was Captain Lubbock, the Master of the Docks, who afterwards made a practical application of the principle it illustrated by inventing reflecting light-houses. It has frequently occurred that discoveries made by scientific men have been regarded as merely curious until they were made useful by less [searched] but more practical people.
